

NFL DRAFT TEAM EVALUATIONS

2009 DRAFT		INDIANAPOLIS COLTS B-
PICK NO.	PLAYER	COMMENTS	POS	HEIGHT	WEIGHT	SCHOOL
27	DONALD BROWN	With ADDAI exhibiting his fragile nature (which was also true at LSU) it was time to get another guy to at least share the load. ADDAI has more skill as a receiver, but BROWN is a top level runner, who works hard and is a dream off the field as well. This guy will fit right in and be their No. 1 guy this year or next.	RB	5'10	210	UCONN
56	FILI MOALA	He should be a nice addition to their D, especially with some slight scheme changes going on. He can play inside or outside and gives them a size upgrade. If someone can coach this guy into playing lower out of his stance he could be very special.	DT	6'4	305	SOUTHERN CAL
92	JARRAUD POWERS	I think they see him as a Nickel cover guy with quickness and some ball skills. This would balance their CB group which has big cover guys like JACKSON & HARDEN. I do think he would have been there a Round or two later however, and will therefore call this a reach.	CB	5'9	190	AUBURN
127	AUSTIN COLLIE	I really like this selection and so should PEYTON. COLLIE is a physical receiver who will fight for the ball. He has very good hands and better speed than you think on initial observation. He is a mature, hard working guy who is more NFL ready than some more talented WRs. That's important to the COLTS.	WR	6'1	200	B YU
136	TERRANCE TAYLOR	I think this is a great Value Pick for the end of R4. He lost weight last year to fit the new D scheme at Michigan, and it cost him. He's a 310 lb+ inside guy who runs high motor and was a team Captain. Don't sell him short. He and MOALA will allow them to upsize that interior DL and be more stout against the run.	DT	6'0	310	MICHIGAN
201	CURTIS PAINTER	After a sorry senior season I was a bit surprised to see PAINTER even get Drafted. It seems obvious that they are still looking for someone else to eventually back up PEYTON other than default option JIM SORGI. I would look for him to be on the Practice Squad this year in Indy.	QB	6'3	225	PURDUE
222	PAT McAFEE	I am not shocked to see the team grab a versatile K/P here given the fact that they let HUNTER SMITH sign a big contract with Washington and VINATIERY is about 50 years old. I just thought it would be SUCCOP or SWANK. I thought PAT struggled a bit too much in Mobile to be Drafted.	K/KO/ P	6'0	228	WEST VIRGINIA
236	JAMIE THOMAS	This is typical BILL POLIAN. There is no way THOMAS should have been around this late. He is fairly athletic, and had a solid senior campaign in 2008 for the Terps. He should have a chance to earn a spot as a back-up because he played well in a pro-style college Offense under The Fridge in college.	OG	6'4	325	MARYLAND

I thought this effort was a notch below the past two DRAFTS for Mr. POLIAN, but not by much. As usual he got players who fit into their schemes and fill immediate needs on the roster. And that is how he always approaches the DRAFT. BROWN is a potential Franchise RB and will probably allow them to let ADDAI walk away, thus avoiding that big second contract good RBs always get. All these players have a chance to stick and they all come from big time programs which usually eases the college/pro transition. Nice job as usual, just not exemplary this time.
