

NFL DRAFT TEAM EVALUATIONS

	2009 DRAFT	WASHINGTON REDSKINS D+
PICK NO.	PLAYER	COMMENTS	POS	HEIGHT	WEIGHT	SCHOOL
13	BRIAN ORAKPO	One of the great gifts of this DRAFT was ORAKPO falling to the 'SKINS here. He will be a great pass-rush compliment beside FAT ALBERT, and gives some youth to their DE group. They used him some at OLB in Mini-Camp, but his best value to them is with his hand down, and ears pinned back.	DE	6'3	265	TEXAS
80	KEVIN BARNES	Good value at the Pick and a position of need for the team. He has a nice combo of height, flexible hips and good ball instincts. He also delivers a blow, but needs to be careful because he has a fairly thin body frame. Good value pick.	CB	6'1	190	MARYLAND
158	CODY GLENN	This is a big Reach in my opinion. GLENN displays some athleticism, but nothing special that I can see. He was not a playmaker in college and offers not much more than Special Team help. Struggled to stay healthy in college.	LB	6'0	244	NEBRASKA
186	ROBERT HENSON	Looks to be another reach at the same position to me. HENSON is a solid player who may excel on ST, but does not appear to have the size or athleticism to hold up in the NFL, especially in a 4-3 scheme. Was a RFA player, just like GLENN.	ILB	6'0	240	T C U
221	EDDIE WILLIAMS	He kind of makes sense because traditionally the "SKINS O makes use of H-B type TEs. But his strength is not considered to be as a power blocker. Not a great combination of size and skill sets. He will need work to fit in in the NFL.	H-B	6'1	240	IDAHO
243	MARKO MITCHELL	This is a solid value pick for them. MITCHELL is limited and needs to work harder, but he has excellent height, good speed and average hands. He is inconsistent but this is the 7th Round after all. Worth a shot this late if they can coach him up.	WR	6'4	218	NEVADA

After a very solid effort in the 2008 DRAFT the REDSKINS slipped back down several notches with their 2009 effort in my opinion. Given some of their selections I would suggest they go back to trading away most of their Picks for serviceable vets. Almost everyone was all over the RAIDERS for their wild and erratic DRAFT, but take a good look at this effort and tell me you really think that they did any better overall than DARTH DAVIS. I think not!